

Prof. dr hab. Franciszek Woch.

Institute of Soil Science and Plant Cultivation

Department of Soil Science, Erosion and Land Protection

ul. Czartoryskich 8

24-100 Puławy

e-mail: franciszek.woch@iung.pulawy.pl

Born in 1950 in Zamość district in Poland. Education: National School of Forestry in Tułowice (1970), Lublin Academy of Agriculture (1975), postgraduate studies: “Organization and management for executives” (1987). Scientist in Institute of Soil Science and Plant Cultivation (Puławy, 1975-1981, 1989 - and continues). Vice-president of Puławy Housing Cooperative (1982-1988), in 2008-2013 professor of The Jan Kochanowski University in Kielce, Faculty of Mathematics and Natural Sciences (the promoter of: 1 doctor, 59 masters).

Doctorate in Institute of Soil Science and Plant Cultivation, subject: “Agricultural economics” (Puławy, 1983). Habilitation: Institute of Soil Science and Plant Cultivation, subject: “Environmental management” (Puławy, 2002). Associate professor (2010). Field of research: Development of rural areas, environmental management. Author (co-author) of about 200 issues, in that: 60 unique publications, 9 monographs and manuals, 30 chapters in monographs or manuals.